While there are about 370 species of birds that have been known in Ohio, only a few of them can be identified by the average person.

The 370 mentioned includes all of the common birds which nest in the state, as well as the rare species that have only been recorded in one or two places in the state, probably while migrating. As a matter of fact upward of 200 kinds of birds nest in the state, and of this number I would say that approximately 50 to 75 of these nest in Fayette County, although I will admit that is plain guessing.

Some of the earlier birds, or those remaining here during the winter, nest as early as March, but most of them nest in May and June.

I do not believe there is as much uncalled for slaughter of birds as there was years ago when less was known about their habits, and the fact that they are of tremendous value to the human family.

Not only are the birds of great benefit to mankind, but their songs are usually melodious and cheerful, and like flowers, make this old world a brighter, happier place in which to live.

It's a woman postman in Jeffersonville these days!

Mrs. Dean Powell is taking over while Elmer Moots, regular-mail man is on a three weeks' vacation. Clad in blue slacks, shirt and a postman's cap, Mrs. Powell makes deliveries twice a day in the residential districts and thrice daily in the business section.

While she is on duty, her niece, Iris Noble of Clarksville, cares for her year-and-a-half old son, Jerry Wayne. Her husband is on the day shift at Patterson Field.

Postal work isn't new to Mrs. Powell, formerly Georgia Chaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Chaney of Bloomingburg. Actual delivery of mail is a novelty, but she had assisted behind the windows in the post office before taking over the postman's job.

For a week before she went on her own, Mrs. Powell went with Moots to learn the route—to make sure she wouldn't get the right letter in the wrong box.

EGGS ON SIDING WILL BE PUT INTO FEED

Mixers Paid Five Cents a Case For Them

COLUMBUS, June 8.—(P)—A carload of eggs for which the government paid $8.10 a case is sitting on a railroad siding here, War Food Administration spokesmen said today, awaiting conversion into animal protein feed. Feed mixers paid five cents a case for the eggs.

The WFA said in Chicago last night about 70 carloads were being disposed of throughout the middle west because of lack of storage and outlets.

The WFA is supporting the egg market at a current price of 27 cents a dozen, or $8.10 a case, for current receipts which are ungraded eggs bought in the country. A spokesman said the administration would continue to support the market no matter how many eggs we have to take.

BIAK AIR BASE OFF NEW GUINEA TAKEN BY YANKS

Philippines Brought Within Closer Bomber Range of Allied Planes

By WILLIAM PHIPPS

(By the Associated Press)

Gen. Douglas MacArthur owned an airbase today within bomber range of the Philippines—the Allies' first since Japan's steamroller crushed them back against Australia early in the Pacific war. Toughened American invaders of Biak, largest island of the Schouten group off Dutch New Guinea, outsmarted the Japanese defenders to grab Mokmer airbase after 12 days of savage fighting. Mokmer is only 880 miles southeast of the Philippines.

Announcement of the Yanks' Mokmer triumph highlighted Japanese setbacks in every Pacific theater except central China where fierce Chinese resistance was being overcome around Changsha.

This key Hanks-Canton railway center in Hunan province was being strangled slowly by six Japanese spearheads in a drive to split China from north to south.

But the Chinese pressed ahead on the Salween River front in their thrust through Yunnan province toward Burma where other Allied forces are fighting to link the Burma and Ledo roads. In India, Allied troops pursued Japanese fleeing the Kohima area.

American fliers, striking from Central Pacific bases, carried new attacks to Guam, pre-war U. S. naval base 1,595 miles east of Manila, to Nauru and Ponape.

H. R. TOWNSEND DIES OF HEART AILMENT

Death Comes Unexpectedly to Ohio Sports Boss

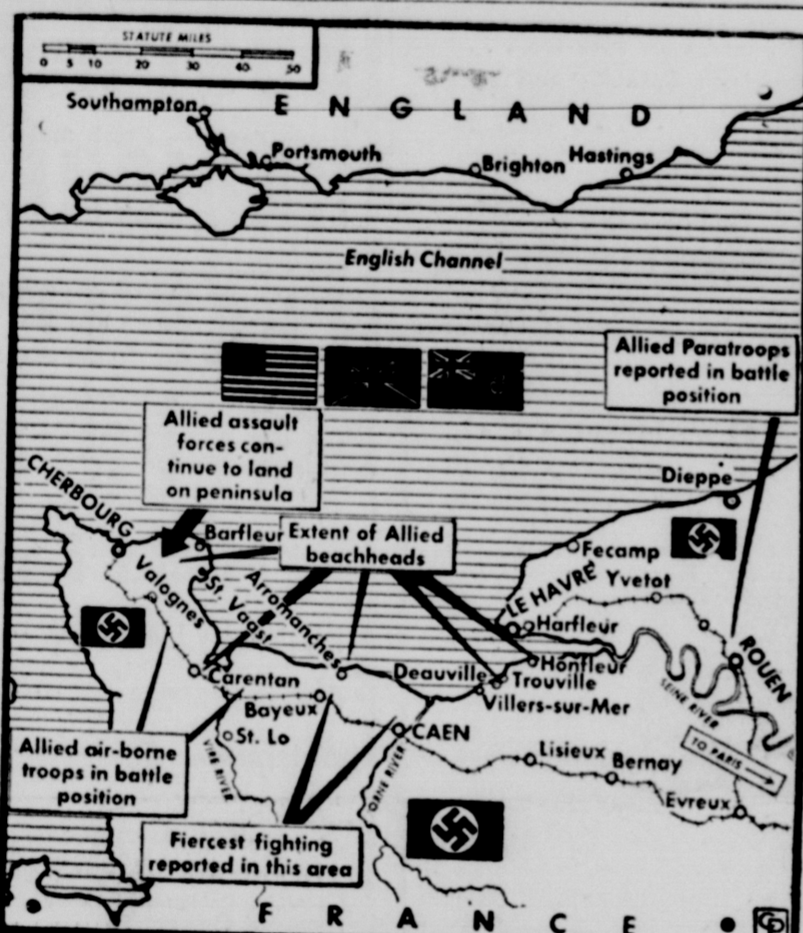

COLUMBUS, June 8.—(P)—Horace R. Townsend, 60, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic Association, died unexpectedly yesterday of a heart attack.

Townsend was stricken as he and members of his family were enroute from Columbus to their farm in Clinton County.

Known to high school students as the man who governed their athletics and to thousands of athletes as the motivating power behind the progressive program of the association, Townsend had served the schools of the state for 20 years.

The association's board of control scheduled an emergency meeting here late today and belief was expressed it might name a temporary commissioner.

Townsend was a native of Clinton County. He attended Wilmington College and was graduated from Harvard University. He taught in many Ohio schools.

ACCORDING TO ALL available information, the invasion of Europe is "progressing better than expected." Gains and battle sites, as reported from Allied sources and also from labeled Nazi propaganda sources, are shown on this map.

Inquiry Proposed Into Invasion Talk

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—Senator Chandler (D., Ky.) today proposed a senatorial investigation into the demotion of Maj. Gen. Henry J. F. Miller to his permanent rank of lieutenant colonel and his subsequent dismissal from the European theater to the United States for talking in advance about D-Day.

"That is one of the most serious things an officer could do," said Chandler. "Thousands of lives depended on keeping that date secret. I think the military committee should know all of the circumstances."

The Army quoted Miller as having said, at a cocktail party, "On my honor, the invasion will take place before June 15."

Military Merger The House committee on post-war military policy discloses the two Army officers and two Navy officers sit as a committee to study proposals for merging the military departments. Reason for the committee: Widely divergent views among the military on the subject of consolidation.

Price Control Some senators predicted today that President Roosevelt might veto the bill to extend the Price Control Administration, because of amendments written into the bill which they feel would reduce controls over inflation. Controversial amendments include one to relieve merchants of damage liability in consumer suits if they prove that charged ceiling price violations were unintentional, and an amendment which would raise some cotton textile prices.

British Unit The first British unit to train on United States soil since the revolutionary war has been recruited in the Caribbean and Bermuda, consolidated in the United States and is in training for overseas duty. Formation of the new combat unit, called the First Caribbean Regiment, was announced this morning in connection with a ceremonial parade by the troops in celebration of the birthday of King George VI.

LE HAVRE AFLAME BERNE, Switzerland, June 8.—(P)—A state of siege has been declared in Rouen, inland from Le Havre, and great fires are ravaging the city, the Swiss Telegraph Agency reported today.

SIX MINERS TRAPPED AS FIRE BURNS IN SHAFT CLARKSVILLE, Pa., June 8.—(P)—Six coal miners were reported trapped by fire in the Charters shaft of the Emerald Coal and Coke Co. near the southwest Pennsylvania town today.

The U.S. Bureau of Mines said the men were at work in the 400-foot shaft last night when flames broke out among the timbers holding up the roof of one entry.

BIG RED DRIVE STARTED; YANKS GO ON IN ITALY

Rome Left 38 Miles Behind As Fleeing Nazis Chased Beyond Captured City

(By the Associated Press)

The Allied invasion on the coast of France literally exploding his vaunted West Wall, Hitler's European Fortress today was under increasing dangers from two other sides—American and British forces were surging up through Italy in pursuit of the mauled German troops and the Nazis themselves admitted the powerful Russian army had launched a new offensive on a broad scale north of Iasi, Romania.

Rome 38 Miles Behind The Fifth Army has captured Civita Castellana, Rome's principal port, 38 miles northwest of the capital, and today was thrusting swiftly up the west coast to maintain contact with the retreating enemy.

Other Fifth Army units, speeding in a more northerly direction, captured the town of Bracciano, 20 miles north of Rome, on the west shore of the large lake of the same name. Still another column last was reported passing the lake on the east side, 15 miles north of Rome.

Nazis Disorganized An official spokesman declared "the battered remnants of the German 14th Army are in a considerable state of disorganization. Upwards of 40 Wehrmacht formations are represented in the collection of prisoners taken in the exodus from Rome and beyond. Apparently even battalions are attaching themselves to whatever higher echelon is available."

Allied forces driving due north of Rome captured Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's former headquarters, about three miles south-east of Civita Castellana. The headquarters, described as an "elaborate, tunneled underground stronghold," was put under a strong guard.

3 U. S. BATTLESHIPS IN INVASION ATTACK

LONDON, June 8.—(P)—Seven Allied battleships—three of them American—and scores of flanking cruisers and destroyers, including revenge-thirsty French, Norwegian, Polish and Dutch ships, comprised the task forces which ripped the first breaches in Hitler's Atlantic wall.

The battleship Texas led the western task force under Rear Admiral Alan Goodrich Kirk. The squadron also included the battleships Arkansas and Nevada.

MARINE SHARPSHOOTERS PICK OFF FLOATING MINES SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 8.—(P)—Marines played a unique role in the invasion. Picked Leatherneck sharpshooters rode high in the masts of the big ships of the bombardment force and picked off floating mines with their rifles.

Eyewitness Stories From Invasion Front

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN

(Representing the combined Allied Press, distributed by the Associated Press) WITH THE ALLIED INVADING FORCES IN FRANCE, June 8.—The so-called Atlantic Wall along this coast constitutes the biggest bluff of the whole war for it simply does not exist. Some prisoners said the Germans frantically had been trying to complete defenses but the task had been too vast for them.

Although we have pushed far inland without encountering serious opposition, it must not be imagined the Germans will not react as soon as they have grouped their Panzer forces. They tried to hold us in the region of Caen and Bayeux but our tanks were in greater force. We have thrown into battle British and American tanks and self-propelled guns.

Some of these actions have been responsible for demoralizing the enemy. All the French people with whom I talked spoke of the Nazi loss of courage. They may not be beaten but they are near to it. Prisoners also said the defeats in Russia and Italy are known to the rank and file and they realize it is all up with their cause.

I have just completed a tour of the front line covering nearly 30 miles. We have captured towns and villages and the whole countryside is beflagged with Union Jacks, Stars and Stripes and the French Tricolor.

Bayeux inhabitants were crazy with joy. A squadron of our medium bombers flew over low.

"That is what frightened the Germans most," the French folk said. They scurried underground like rabbits whenever your fliers came over. During the last few days before the invasion, your air attacks were terrific. We could read fear on the faces of the Germans."

Paratroops Take Key Bridges With Surprise Night Attacks

By LEONARD MOSELEY

(Representing the combined Allied Press, distributed by the Associated Press) BEHIND THE ATLANTIC WALL, June 6.—(Delayed)—I parachuted into Europe at 1 A. M. today, a half hour after the first paratroopers had landed and six and one-half hours before our seaborne forces had stormed the beaches.

The group which went in ahead of the unit with which I jumped was under orders to capture vital bridges before they could be blown up by the Nazis. It was our job to bring them aid and infest the whole area for 100 square miles around to prevent Nazis from counter-attacking.

"Hook up your chutes," was the signal from the pilot. It was five minutes to one when the light snapped off and a hole in the plane was opened. Under it we could see the coast of France below—and a garish sight it was. For flak from the coast defenses was spouting flame everywhere.

In great globes of red and purple it burst all around our plane as we coasted in and down to the dropping zone. Then we are all madiy shuffling down the hole and jumping into space.

As I twisted down I looked for a church I had been told to spy for a landmark. But I came down in an orchard outside a farmhouse and I knew I was hopelessly lost.

I crawled forward through trees. Suddenly there was a rip and tear in my jumping frock and I flung myself to the ground. Machine guns rattled and there were the smashing explosions of hand grenades. I began to run at a crouch. Suddenly there were two more figures coming for me, carrying guns. There was a crash of sten-gunfire and both men crumpled up not 15 yards from me.

Into the farm field stealthily came five men to challenge me. And I was with our own paratroopers again.

We made our rendezvous at 3 A. M. after two long weary hours of wandering about the Nazi-infested country. I made my way to the bridges. Here the battle had ceased and both the river and canal spans were in our hands and firmly held by paratroop machine gunners.

We had taken the Nazis by surprise.

At 3:20 A. M. every Allied paratrooper behind the Atlantic Wall breathed a sign of relief as he heard the roar of bombers coming in low, towing gliders toward the dropping ground.

We saw one hit by ack-ack catch fire and fly around for three or four minutes, a great ball of flame. It was hard to restrain the impulse to cheer, for out of every glider men were pouring, with jeeps and anti-tank guns and field guns, and we knew that even if Nazi tanks came we could hold them now.

Allies Welcomed By People Before Street Fight Over

FIERCE FIGHTING RAGING INLAND ON FRENCH SOIL

Germans Falling Back Under Terrific Onslaught as Allies Pour in Reinforcements

By WES GALLAGHER

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 8.—(P)—Allied liberating troops, with the first phase of invasion accomplished, struck southward from captured Bayeux today in fierce fighting and began the second step of defeating German tactical reserves thrown into battle.

A steady stream of reinforcements by sea and air strengthened the massive spearhead, and Berlin reported a pincers threat to seize the tip of the jutting Cherbourg peninsula and its great port of Cherbourg.

The first phase of invasion, "which might be said to be securing a foothold and defeating local German reserves, has been accomplished," supreme headquarters announced.

Second Stage Begun The Allies now are beginning the second stage of defeating Nazi "tactical reserves," and still ahead is the third task of crushing "strategic reserves," perhaps massing already for a strong counterblow.

Specific directions and progress in today's fighting were not disclosed, but headquarters announced medium bombers had struck heavily at the town of Caen, 16 miles southeast of Bayeux, starting fires. The Allies have plunged near Caen, nine miles inland on the peninsula's base.

Prime Minister Churchill said Tuesday there was fighting in Caen, perhaps referring to paratroopers who had reached there. Nazi counterblows near Caen were repulsed yesterday, headquarters said.

American heavy bombers blasted railway installations at Rennes, Laval, Tours, Le Mans, Nantes and Angers in support of the beachhead forces, flying out 750 to 1,000 strong.

A German broadcast, totally without confirmation, said 1,300 gliders used to rush in a huge air-borne army, had been destroyed or captured.

Bayeux Captured

Capture of Bayeux snipped the railway between Paris and Cherbourg, 45 miles to the northwest, and opened the way for a thrust deeper inland.

But farther west the Germans pictured Allied forces already within 20 miles of a junction that would choke off Cherbourg itself. Berlin declared house-to-house fighting raged in Ste. Mere-Eglise, 20 miles southeast of the port, and said paratroopers had landed on the west coast only a score of miles southwest of Ste. Mere-Eglise.

There was no Allied confirmation of west coast landings or fighting at Ste. Mere-Eglise, on one of the two main roads to Cherbourg.

Fierce Battles Flare Heavy battles, with tanks and reserves sped up by both sides, flared over the peninsula, Allied

Court House Clock Must Be Turned Back An Hour

JESSE HAGLER WINS SUIT FOR TIME CHANGE

Judge H. M. Rankin Overrules Demurrer and Case Appears Ended

As result of a decision handed down Thursday by Judge H. M. Rankin, in which he overruled a demurrer filed by the defendants in the case of The State of Ohio on relation of Jesse Hagler, a taxpayer, against the County Commissioners, asking a writ of mandamus to compel the commissioners to turn the Court House clock back to slow time, indications are that the clock will be turned back to Eastern Standard Time within a short time.

Following the decision Prosecutor John B. Hill, who represents the commissioners, said no answer would be filed in the case, and that the case was closed insofar as they are concerned. This paves the way for Judge Rankin to issue the writ of mandamus asked for by Hagler, ordering the clock turned back.

In brief Judge Rankin held the office of county commissioners was created by the legislature and that their actions are regulated by laws enacted by the legislature.

At the same time Judge Rankin held that municipalities are not regulated by the same statutes, and can fix any standard of time they desire.

Just when the court order will be issued has not been indicated, and the court decision here, is expected to have wide influence in the changing of Court House clocks back to slow time.

The demurrer filed by the commissioners stated that the facts stated in the petition do not constitute a cause of action.

In his decision Judge Rankin says in part: "In the consideration of the question thus raised it is necessary to inquire into the nature of the office of county commissioner and the powers and authority of the board of county commissioners."

"There is no provision in the constitution creating or requiring the establishment of the office of county commissioner. The office is, therefore, wholly the creature of statute."

"Since the board of county commissioners is solely a creature of the legislature, the legislature, as a matter of course, has the right to define the powers and authority of the board and the further right to say under what circumstances and in what manner the powers conferred shall be exercised."

"It is well settled that a board of county commissioners possesses and can exercise such powers, and only such powers, as are expressly or impliedly conferred on it by the statutes of the state. The legislature may not only define the powers and duties of the county commissioners but it may also limit their powers, or alter them, either by enlarging or curtailing or taking them away, as it sees fit."

"Statutes which confer powers and authority upon the board of county commissioners, being delegations of power by the state, are strictly construed against the board. When acting under a special power given by statute, they must act strictly on the conditions under which the power is given. If no power is given by the statute to act except in a special manner, and that manner is not followed, the act of the board is illegal and void."

"The statutes of the state authorize the board of county commissioners to construct, equip and furnish a Court House. While they have some jurisdiction and control over the Court House when erected, the nature and extent of that jurisdiction and control is such, and only such, as the legislature prescribes. While it is clearly in the province of the legislature to prescribe the manner in which it is maintained, set and run."

(Here Judge Rankin quotes from the statute fixing Central Standard Time, and which further states: "All clocks maintained in or upon public buildings, existing as such under the laws of this state, shall be set and run according to the provisions of this act Sec. 5979, General Code.")

The decision further says in part:

"Of course the Court House comes within the category of 'public buildings existing under the laws of this state.'"

"The statutes leave nothing to the discretion of the board of county commissioners. The statute imposes upon the board the mandatory duty to 'set and run' the clocks maintained by them in or upon the Court House according to the standard time prescribed by the statute."

"If there is anything wrong with the standard of time prescribed by the statutes the remedy lies with the legislature—not with the boards of county commissioners or with the courts."

"Municipalities, on the other hand, may prescribe a different standard of time from that pre-

PLAN INDEPENDENT FOR COMMISSIONER

Farm Folks Volunteer To Carry Petitions

At a meeting of the Madison Township Farm Bureau Council, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Wilson, the time question was discussed and some expressed the view that two of the county commissioners had "let the country folks down" regarding the time question.

Upon motion by A. E. Dawson and seconded by H. B. Lightie, it was voted that the council place an independent candidate in the field for commissioner at the November election, and several members volunteered to carry petitions which, it was stated, would be circulated soon.

came in a sudden drive which outflanked the Japanese. Held up on the coastal road west of their Bosney beachhead, McArthur's infantry threw a column inland and stormed Mokmer from behind. American losses were light, the communique said.

With Mokmer secured, the Yanks mounted a new assault toward Biak's other airfields—Borokoe, two miles west and a mile inland, and Ordo, three and one-half miles west on the coast.

The Tokyo radio said today six B-24 heavy bombers had "attempted to raid" Sorong at the western tip of Dutch New Guinea, some 340 airline miles west of the recent Allied landings in the Schouten Islands, Tuesday afternoon.

scribed by statute. (Here certain decisions are cited.)

"Those cases hold that a municipality may prescribe the standard of time in accordance with which its own local offices and purely municipal transactions shall be operated and regulated. It must be conceded that the standard of time prescribed by the law of the state governs and controls as to all matters except those having to do solely with local governmental action and procedure."

"The reason for this distinction lies in the fact that counties derive their powers from the statutes of the state while municipalities derive their power from Section 3, Article 18, of the constitution of Ohio, commonly known as the home-rule amendment."

"The Congress of the United States has made provision in substance that for the purpose of establishing the standard time of the United States, the continental United States be divided into five zones. But it has been held that the act of Congress makes the standard of time 'applicable only to the movement of common carriers engaged in interstate and foreign commerce; to its own officials and departments; and to all acts done by any persons under federal statutes, orders, rules and regulations.'"

Just what effect the decision will have in the community and other communities is problematical.

Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's men captured the important town of Monterotondo, 12 miles northeast of Rome, and the nearby towns of Sant'Angelo, Romano, Guidonia, and Mentana. Guidonia is valuable because it has an air field.

Adriatic Approached
Farther to the east the Eighth Army captured Subiaco, about eight miles south of the main highway running across the Italian peninsula from Rome to the Adriatic, and stabbed up on a lateral road which had been one of the main German lines of retreat.

Near the Adriatic flank, Eighth Army troops followed up the withdrawing Germans, gaining two to three miles to reach the outskirts of the towns of Barrea, Pescocostanzo and Rivisondoli in the direction of Sulmona, birthplace of Ovid.

Between 250 and 500 Fortresses and Liberators yesterday pounded rail lines on the French Riviera, the port of Livorno, the Voltri shipyards west of Genoa and the Savona rail yards.

Reds Renew Drive
DNB in a Berlin broadcast today announced that the Russians had launched an offensive on a broad front in the sector north of Iasi, Romania.

A broadcast Romanian communique said "heavy fighting is in progress."

There was no confirmation immediately from Moscow, but a new offensive on the Russian front has been expected to put new pressure on Germany's east while American and British forces are attacking in France and Italy.

Last night's Moscow communique said German attacks north of Iasi have "diminished considerably," indicating the Germans may have been stopped in a push which they announced earlier.

Red troops counter-attacking in the Moldavian province succeeded in capturing two heights from the Nazis, a broadcast communique said.

From May 30 to June 6 the Germans lost more than 10,000 dead in the savage fighting near Iasi, and suffered heavily through destruction of equipment, Moscow asserted.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The great (and undoubtedly bloody) battle which is boiling up from the Allied invasion of the Cherbourg peninsula shows increasing signs of becoming an exceptional game of wits between those old rivals of the North African desert, Field Marshal Rommel and General Montgomery—two of the fastest thinking and quickest acting tacticians the war has produced.

One is prone to regard all battles as chess games—but the rule doesn't hold. Many are won by overwhelming strength without any finesse, as witness Hitler's early victories when he rode roughshod over a helpless Europe. But the battle of the peninsula will turn in no small degree on the acumen of those great soldiers, Montgomery and Rommel.

Already the German local counter-attacks are under way and there's fierce fighting. However, Rommel seems to be moving cautiously. Of course, before he rushes a big army to the peninsula he must be sure that this is one of the major Allied thrusts and not merely a feint to draw his fire while the main attack is made elsewhere. Still, one feels that he's holding his hand pending the moment when he can do the most damage.

That may account in part for the lack of German air power on D-Day. The greatly depleted Luftwaffe is being held in reserve for crucial battles.

Rommel undoubtedly would like to get a big Allied force farther inland before his major counter-assault. He's an exponent of tank action, and favors conditions under which he can make quick maneuvers. He may try to force an open battle. That will suit Montgomery—providing the Allies have been able to put ashore sufficient men and equipment. It's a race against time.

Well, we should know more about it in another week or so, if the Allies continue to develop their landing. Apparently they're aiming to cut the whole peninsula off, thereby securing a superb base, made to order with the great port of Cherbourg and a main railroad and highways leading to Paris.

The Allied capture of the strategic rail and highway center of Bayeux, five miles inland from the central Normandy coast—a coup which Allied headquarters labels as "very important news"—will do much to expedite the conquest of the whole peninsula, and that means an advance deeper into France.

The situation is getting hotter on the peninsula and it should be beachhead troops are linking up with airborne forces dropped deeper inland, headquarters said, and improvement in adverse weather aided reinforcements from glider sky trains.

Field reports declared British-Canadian troops had captured a number of French towns and villages, advancing on open roads to points some miles from the coast. Infantrymen rode up to battle on bicycles and tanks to speed the advance.

A Berlin broadcast said British troops pushed through Bayeux early today and are advancing southwest toward the Vire River, which cuts across the peninsula.

Allies Welcomed
The French in Bayeux hysterically greeted the Allied soldiers with shouts of "On to Paris."

For the third straight night American and British airborne troops dropped in great clouds. Jeeps, motorcycles, and anti-tank guns were flown in to support the airborne attack—which means the Allies either had captured an airfield or built one.

German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, once again contending with his old and victorious foe, emphasized again that bitter times are ahead. Some German reserves and tank units already have been flung into the action. The Luftwaffe also is beginning to show itself a bit.

Many inquiries are coming to my desk as to why Russia hasn't attacked simultaneously with the western Allies. That's an interesting point—but there's no cause for anxiety or doubts. For reasons best known to itself, the Allied high command decided that the Red armies should do exactly what they are doing—sit tight for the moment. Russia is ready and will attack with terrific force at the agreed time. Meanwhile, her massed armies on the battle line are holding the Hitlerites glued to the spot.

Anyway, the thing that matters is that the "second front" on which the Russians have been insisting for three years is finally opened. It has caused an unprecedented war-time celebration in Moscow. And that's something, when we remember that the controversy over the second front was acute in 1942. Nothing could have done more to strengthen relations among the Big Three than the arrival of D-Day.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, threw an increasing number of tanks into his checking battles, but the Allies also were rolling lines of armor ashore and into the raging fighting back from the coast.

Both French natives and German prisoners revealed Hitler and Rommel recently toured the Atlantic wall in the very area where the Allies attacked.

Secret Weapon
The Allied command permitted an announcement that rocket-firing ships were used to pound the landing beaches ahead of troops.

"This was the first secret development learned from the Dieppe raid to be announced," a headquarters officer said. "There will be others later."

A continuing stream of German broadcasts included reports of house-to-house fighting in the village of Ste. Mere-Eglise, near the eastern shore of the Cherbourg peninsula; that the Germans had driven British parachute troops from the village of Varville, east of the Orne River, and that British tank forces last night were driving south along both banks of the Seulles River, which strikes between Caen and Bayeux.

Eisenhower Confident
On the third day of the invasion, Supreme Commander Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared: "My complete confidence in the ability of the Allied armies, navies and air forces to do all they are asked to do has been completely justified."

Even as he spoke, Berlin radio reported the Russians had launched an offensive north of Lasi in Romania—perhaps the beginning of a coordinated nutcracker blow from the east.

Eisenhower declared the ground troops are "performing magnificently," praised the naval landing operations as surpassing any other amphibious operation he has seen and lauded the "long and brilliant" aerial campaign that proved such effective preparation for landings.

Powerful Air Support
Powerful air armadas scourged German defenses today, with 750 to 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators mauling bridges, railroad targets and airfields in an arc 100 to 150 miles south of the beachheads, and U. S. Marauders starting fires in Caen, southeast of Bayeux, toward which a beachhead force is driving.

Canadian and British troops have captured several hundred prisoners and shot up numerous Nazi 88-millimeter guns, field reports said. Canadian Press Correspondent Ross Munro, with Canadians in an unidentified sector, said the Germans were reported falling back in one area under persistent attacks, and "strength is being built up rapidly in the Allied bridgeheads for the big battles which should come any day, or even any hour."

The German high command declared the Allies had opened an attack from the bridgehead between Caen and Bayeux, and that Nazi forces counterattacked. Heavy fighting continues, it added.

Heavy Casualties
Berlin said Americans who gained a foothold north of Caen, some 27 miles southeast of Cherbourg, had suffered heavy casualties. It also claimed successes near the Orne River mouth, above Caen.

A landing attempt in the Bay of St. Martin at the northwest tip of the peninsula, near Cap de la Hague, was frustrated, the enemy high command said.

Engineer troops joined the flood of Allied reinforcements, helping in tearing down Atlantic wall defenses, and a U. S. Ninth

Air Force troop carrier report of flying jeeps and guns disclosed the Allies had captured or built at least one airfield on the peninsula.

"Everything is going excellently," said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, ground forces commander.

Several Beachheads
It now is apparent the Allies have several beachheads on a 50-mile coastal stretch between Caen and Carentan, with some of them joined together.

Headquarters was silent on Berlin reports that parachutists in a deep, daring thrust had landed at Falaise and Argentan, 30 miles southeast of Caen, with street fighting flaring in Falaise. The Germans said eight to 13 Allied divisions were fighting on the peninsula.

Thundering naval support of the drive continued, and Allied airmen destroyed 102 Nazi planes yesterday.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower used his airborne troops to the fullest, and an observer on a ship in the channel said at one time "the sky overhead became unbelievably crowded with aircraft. Four lanes of tow-plane traffic going each way spanned the channel."

Troops Need Rest
The Germans likewise rushed in new strength, and Prime Minister Churchill warned against over-optimism, declaring "enormous exertions lie before us."

Some of the troops have been fighting continuously since Tuesday morning, and it is likely there may be a short lull in advances as they rest, regroup and bring up supplies.

German aircraft began to appear in the battle areas in greater numbers. In the past 24 hours, headquarters announced, a total of 102 enemy planes were destroyed—82 in air combat and 20 on the ground.

Allied air forces flew more than 9,000 sorties yesterday, bombing and strafing the enemy from the Normandy beachheads to 100 miles inside France. German reserves moving toward the battle scene were a particular target.

Atlantic Wall Defense
The enemy-controlled Vichy radio declared Marshall Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt had told his German troops to defend the Atlantic Wall "to the last man," but nevertheless Berlin broadcasts conceded that in three days the Allies steadily had expanded the invasion bridgehead—which Axis sources, said stretched from Valognes, near the tip of the Cherbourg Peninsula, to a point north of Caen.

Accompanied last night indicated a battle was in progress for Caen, 18 miles southeast of Bayeux and nine miles from the sea, but this morning's announcement made no further reference to the town.

Returning Allied fliers said Caen was burning. A German tank column counter-attacked in that area late Tuesday, but headquarters said the thrust was repulsed.

Allied Forces Join
Airborne troops which came down behind the German lines

now have made contact with the forces which went ashore from the naval invasion armada, the morning communique said.

Days of Anxiety
Thousands of Fayette County residents are passing through a period of deep anxiety just now when they know that sons, brothers, and fathers, very dear to them, are participating in the greatest sea-borne and airborne invasion in history. Most of these people on the home front are hiding bravely their qualms and worries over the fate of their loved ones who already are engaged in this great European struggle or soon are expected to be in it.

There will be some of our Fayette County boys who will become heroes on the battlefields of this war in the days to come and will live to return just as many already have done. Unfortunately there will be other heroes who will give their lives or suffer critical injuries in responding to the call of military duty.

While there are heroes on the battlefield there also are unsung heroes at home, people who, while maintaining tense silence, are doing their daily jobs without complaint, but whose hearts are sick with fear for those they love now in the front ranks of fighting armies.

It behooves the rest of us to be considerate. If we are greeted with a seemingly harsh word by friend or stranger, we must ignore it. If an acquaintance turns away when we speak of the Allied invasion, change the subject.

It is our hope that all of us at home can wait as bravely as our boys will fight. There must be no hysteria; no heeding of fantastic rumors. We must face the facts, realizing that temporary setbacks are almost inevitable, but that final victory lies not too far ahead.

Get Ready To Help
A new bond campaign is to begin on June 12, to run through July 8, and every American should prepare at once to buy all government securities possible. This is the only way in which the war can be financed without intolerably heavy taxation or fiscal policies which would inevitably bring on a period of desolating inflation.

The total goal for Fayette County is $950,000. All purchases of Series E, F and G bonds, and Tax C Savings Notes made during the period from June 1 to July 31, will be regarded as applying against the quota.

The banks are ready to make loans to those who wish to negotiate them for the purpose of buying bonds, and the interest rate will be reasonable. As Fayette County has seldom failed to meet the war demands upon it, it must not fail now. While the campaign is going on millions of American boys will be landing in Europe to engage in the greatest military enterprise of all time, and to wind up the war on that continent. If ever the people of the United States had an incentive to stand by the government in time of war, they will have one when this drive starts.

Get ready to buy. Do everything possible to make the loan a success.

OMAHA, Neb.—Friends of former Sen. George W. Norris here are confident that if President Roosevelt runs for a fourth term, the state's most famous independent will take as active a part as his health will permit in seeing that the President is re-elected. At his McCook, Neb., home the aging former senator told me over long distance telephone that he didn't want to make his statement at this time. In the conversation that followed I asked him what he would do if the campaign were waged between President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. His answer was: "Well, son, you can draw your own conclusions as to that."

That's what most of his friends have done. Admitting that he wasn't "feeling well," the 80-year-old veteran of more political battles than any other man in the state expressed considerable impatience at being on the sidelines. Just how much weight Norris would have in Nebraska if he is able actively to back the President for a

Goebbels' Vicious Plan
The Nazis, hard-pressed for military manpower, have resorted to yet another breach of international law. Dr. Goebbels has invited German civilians to kill parachuting Allied fliers, and justified himself with some typical Nazi absurdity about Allied planes machine-gunning school children.

This, like many another Goebbels' pipe-dream, may backfire. It certainly has not stopped air activity over Germany, and will not. But it has again outraged civilization with another instance of Hitler's brutality. We shall not take the sort of counter-measures that have made the Nazi infamous. But a just vengeance is not retaliation. Each of these new measures of Nazi desperation will make any thought of a "soft" peace for Germany that much more unlikely.

Diet and Health

Subject of Rest Debatable Topic

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
REST IN bed has always been for me the great cure-all. It is also one of the most neglected procedures in the whole field of treatment. Many a man is rushing around his business affairs working himself into a lather of nervousness and worry, taking something at night to make him sleep and something before meals to help his digestion and taking time off to go to the gymnasium or to a masseur when if he would just go to bed and do nothing for two weeks his frayed nerves would begin to calm down and feel normal. A week or so ago I quoted the remark made to me once—"I verily believe that if everyone spent all his life in bed no one would ever die."

Well, now comes my friend, Dr. William Dock, of Cornell Medical School, and gets his picture in a magazine because he says that—"Bed rest kills more patients than anesthesia and all the drugs in the pharmacopoeia added together." His objections come down to the items that, prolonged bed rest robs the bones of chalk and creates a negative calcium balance, that it breaks down morale by the use of bedpans and the feeling of helplessness, and impedes blood flow and thus leads to the formation of blood clots which wander over the body and light in the lungs and brain and other places and thus cause those more deaths than anesthesia. The anesthetists claim (by the way, Bill!) that they give 5,000 successful anesthetics without a death.

Doctor's Other Objections
He went on to say in his original article in the New York State Medical Journal, that sitting up in a chair promoted just as much physiologic rest as bed rest and was free of the hazard of the pressure on the backs of the legs which, according to statistics, leads to the formation of blood clots as mentioned above.

Dr. Dock also intimated that man was not intended by Nature to lie on his back. Unlike all other mammals man sleeps on his back. My reaction to that is that I am not sure about Nature not intending man to be recumbent, but she certainly didn't intend him to assume the erect position. Some of the penalties human beings pay for standing upright on their feet are: flat feet, varicose veins, visceropositis (dropped stomach and intestine), shoulder bursitis and backache with or without sciatica. Now, Bill Dock is a smart gink and why shouldn't he be, he had a smart father who was my professor of medicine at the University of Michigan. So we must give some consideration to these objections of his.

The danger of bed rest increases with age. For children and those with tuberculosis of the lungs who are mostly young, it is all right, according to Dr. Dock, but older should not stay in bed "one hour longer than necessary."

Definition of Rest
I once wrote a treatise on medical treatment and my first chapter was on Rest. The first sentence of my definition of rest was—"Rest means a comfortable bed, well made and well tended." There is part of the answer. Bed rest doesn't mean the patient is to lie on his back like a corpse. He should have a back rest and support under his knees and a foot rest so he can brace himself.

I agree that a chair is just as good in most instances as a bed. Nowadays, I believe, it is the ideal of surgeons to get their patients out of bed in a chair on the fourth post-operative day. That is quite a change from the old ideas. I certainly agree about the bedpan breaking down morale. If there is a safe chance for the patient to go to the bathroom or a commode let him do so. The bedpan has remained in its same primitive, horribly awkward state since the days of the cave man. If one of these medical researchers who yearns to discover something, wants to do a real service let them invent a better bedpan and all the world will make a path to his hospital.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

CHAPTER NINETEEN
Watch yourself! Doc Willoughby is remembering that little bottle you whipped out when Nora Haight required an antidote against arsenic poisoning... Will the good doctor tell the police the strange fact that you, a stranger, carried so strange a preparation as ferric hydroxide with him when, strangely, one woman died and another was made seriously ill by the poison for which it was the official antidote?
Dr. Willoughby turned away. He suspects I know something involving the Wright family, thought Ellery. He's an old friend. He brought the three Wright girls into the world... He's uneasy.
Shall I make him still uneasy by confiding that I purchased the drug because I promised Patty Wright her sister Nora wouldn't die? Ellery asked himself.
"The family," demanded Chief Dakin. "Where they at?"
"Upstairs," answered Bradford. "Mrs. Wright insists that Nora—Mrs. Haight—be moved over to the Wright house."
"This is no place for her, Dakin," said Dr. Willoughby. "Nora's pretty sick. She'll need plenty of care."
"It's all right with me," responded the Chief. "It's all right with the Prosecutor."
Bradford nodded hastily and bit his lip. "Don't you want to question them?"
"Well, now," said the Chief slowly, "I can't see the sense of making the Wrights feel worse'n they feel already. At least right now. So if you've got no objection, Cart, let's call it a night."
Prosecutor Bradford said stiffly: "None at all."
"Then we'll have a get-together right here in this room in the mornin'," ordered Dakin. "You tell the Wrights, Cart. Sort of keep it unofficial."
"Are you remaining here?"
"For a spell," drawled Dakin. "Got to call in somebody to haul this corpse out of here. Figure I'll phone Duncan's parlors."
"No morgue!" said Mr. Queen, despite himself.
The Chief's eyes made another inspection. "Well, no, Mr. Smith... Okay for you, Mr. Lloyd. Go easy on those folks in your paper, hey? They'll raise plenty of hal-lu-lujah as it is, I guess... No, sir, Mr. Smith. Got to use a regular undertaking parlor. You see," and the Chief sighed, "we ain't never had a mystery homicide in Wrightsville before, and I been Chief here for pretty near twenty years. Doc, would you be so kind? Coroner Samsen's up in Piny Woods on a New Year vacation."
"I'll do the autopsy," said Dr. Willoughby shortly. He went out without saying good-night.
Carter Bradford walked across the room, stopped, looked back. Jim Haight was still sitting in the chair.
Bradford said in an angry voice: "What are you sitting here for, Haight?"
Jim looked up slowly. "What?"
"You can't sit here all night! Aren't you even going up to your wife?"
"They won't let me," answered Jim. "They won't let me."
Suddenly he leaped from the chair and dashed upstairs. They heard the slam of a door—he had gone into his study.
"See you in the morning, gents," said Chief Dakin, blinking at Ellery.
They left the Chief in the untidy living room, alone with Rosemary Haight's body. Mr. Queen would like to have stayed, but there was something in Dakin's eyes that discouraged company.

Ellery did not see Patricia Wright until they all gathered in the same untidy room at ten o'clock on the morning of New Year's Day... all except Nora, who was in her bed in the other house, guarded by Ludie. Dr. Willoughby had already seen her this morning, and he forbade her leaving the room or even setting foot out of bed.
Ellery layd Pat on Nora's porch. "Before we go in," he said quickly, "I want to explain—" "I don't blame you, Ellery," Pat was almost as sick-looking as Nora. "It might have been worse. It might have been... Nora. It almost was." She shivered.
"I'm sorry about Rosemary," said Ellery just before Pat went inside. Ellery lingered on the porch. It was a gray day, like Rosemary Haight's face: a gray day and cold. Emmy DuPre chattered by, stopped, studied Chief Dakin's car at the curb, frowned... walked on slowly, craning at the two houses. A car drove up. Frank Lloyd jumped out, then Lola Wright. They ran up the walk together.
"Nora! Is she all right?" gasped Lola. Ellery nodded. Lola dashed inside.
"I picked Lola up," said Lloyd. He was breathing heavily, too. "She was walking up the Hill. There was a damp copy of the Wrightsville Record in his overcoat pocket. 'Did Lola know?' asked Ellery as they walked into the house.
"No. She was just taking a walk, she said. Nobody knows yet."
"They will," remarked Ellery dryly, "when your paper hits the streets."
"You're a snoop," growled Lloyd. "But sometimes I like you. Take my advice and hop the first train out."
"I like it here," smiled Ellery. "Why?"
"Because this is a dangerous town."
"How so?"
"You'll see when the news gets around. Everybody who was at the party last night will be smeared. Lloyd shook his heavy shoulders. "I don't figure you."
"Why bother? For that matter, you're not a simple sum in arithmetic yourself."
"You'll hear plenty about me." "I already have."
"I don't know," exclaimed Lloyd savagely, "why I stand here in the foyer gassing with a nitwit!" He shook the floor striding into the living room.
"The poison," said Dr. Willoughby, "is known generally as white arsenic."
They were sitting in a rough circle, like at a séance. Chief Dakin stood at the fireplace, and asked, "What else did you find? That poison part's right. We checked in our lab during the night."
"It's used in medicine mostly as an alternative or tonic," went on the doctor tonelessly. "There's no way of telling from the drugs of the cocktail—at least with accuracy—just judging from the speed with which the poison acted, I'd estimate there was a deadly dose in that glass."
"Prescribe any of that stuff recently for... anyone you know, Doc?" muttered Carter Bradford.
"No."
"We've established a bit more," said Chief Dakin looking around. "Most probably it was plain ordinary rat poison. And no trace of it was found anywhere except in that

Woman's Guild Has Final Meeting of Year at Home Of Mrs. David Barchet

Mrs. David H. Barchet graciously opened her lovely home on East Court Street, Wednesday afternoon to members of the Woman's Guild of the First Presbyterian Church, the members assembling there for the final meeting and reports of the past year.

The meeting was opened by the appearance of a vocal trio composed of Misses Janice Murray, Claire Frances Campbell and Nancy Devins who sang two numbers, "Wishing" and "Angels of Mercy". They were accompanied by Mrs. Herbert Clickner, president of the Guild.

In the absence of Mrs. A. F. Hopkins, the devotional period was conducted by Mrs. C. H. Thoroman.

Under the direction of the president, Mrs. Clickner, various yearly reports were presented to the members for their approval and discussion. The auditing committee appointed by the president is composed of Mrs. Forest F. Tipton, Mrs. John Moomaw and Mrs. C. D. Young, who will audit the treasurer's book and give their report at the first meeting next fall.

It was decided yesterday afternoon that instead of opening their year's work in October, that September will mark the opening date for the club activities. Members of the Guild were invited to the manse by Mrs. John K. Abernethy for this meeting.

SUMMER HOMES ALL BESET BY FIRE DANGERS

Fire Chief George Hall Asks
Owners To Exercise
Every Care

Fire Chief George R. Hall has issued a warning to owners of summer homes, against fire dangers which are especially great in these homes because most of them are "built to burn" and are usually located a long distance from the nearest fire departments.

Chief Hall said: "Be careful in disposing of cigarettes and matches, and, if you have a fireplace, unless it is properly screened, remember to put out live coals before you leave the premises.

"Never start a bonfire or burn rubbish on a windy day," the Chief continued. "Many a wooden shingle roof has gone up in smoke because someone failed to stop and think before setting fire to a rubbish heap. Some vacationists make a practice of burning household rubbish outdoors. An incinerator should be used for this purpose. A simple and inexpensive type consists of an old metal drum with holes cut near the bottom. This is raised off the ground with brick supports and covered with a wire mesh spark arrester. If you are holding a barbecue or campfire party, choose a clearing free from brush and leaves and never leave the fire unattended."

Chief Hall advised filling oil lamps and stoves in the light of day and in the open air. Tanks of kerosene are safer when stored outside in approved, drip-proof containers, and away from heat of any kind. Heating and cooking equipment should be kept in good condition, free from grease spills and with pipes unclogged.

"In vacation homes where you have so many things that can start or catch fire, you must be ready to attack a blaze as soon as it breaks out. If you are not, the place may burn down before help can get to you. That is why it is important to have extinguishers to protect your summer place, be sure they carry the Underwriters' Laboratories approval label. Otherwise, you have no way of knowing that the equipment is dependable.

"Of course," Chief Hall added, "the vacation season usually sees some violent electrical storms. As these may interrupt the electric light service, be prepared to supply your guests and family with flashlights. Candles can burn down the house, unless you were raised in the backwoods and know how to use them.

ABOUT PERRY'S PARK

The following comments are offered concerning the proposed recreation park and swimming pool project being considered by the Washington Rotary Club.

Regardless of our personal desires and convictions, something is needed badly for our "teen-age" group. There is no use trying to deny or evade that fact. It is not peculiar to Washington C. H., for one cannot pick up and read many of the better magazines without finding articles telling how other communities have met that problem. The peculiar thing about our city, is that we have done nothing about it.

When I was a boy, social matters were managed rather differently than they are now for young people, but there is no use trying to go back to those days. We must meet conditions just as they are now whether we like it, or approve of changes, or not. In the summer we used to go to some swimming hole in the creek, often riding miles on our bikes to get there, then swimming as long as we wished and asking no questions as to the sanitation of the water. We did not know so much about germs then, and we got sick just the same. Probably the percent of sickness so contracted was not greater than occurs today from the use of some fine concrete swimming pools. One is sure in a naturally fed pool that he is not swimming in September in the same chlorinated water in to which he plunged in May.

It is natural and proper for young people to want to go swimming in the summer. Again, other towns have met the problem with swimming pools, but here we have been so close a few times you could hear the water splashing, then whoof! along comes someone and blows the whole project up.

We have a good county sanitarian now, and it seems to me with his assistance we should be able to keep a check on the sanitary condition of the water in Perry's Park pool. When it was being operated as a public resort, was the water ever condemned for swimming? We have not been able to learn that it was.

Parks have been set aside for recreation in many cities for years. Is there anything particularly immoral about them? If I wished to find a place where persons were resorting for immoral purposes, believe me I do not think I should search where a crowd has gathered. I should go to some secluded nook where no cation," the Chief concluded, "but, if the precautions I have outlined are observed, there won't be much opportunity for fire to spoil your fun."

one else is likely to come. If Gardner Park on one side of the city is not a menace to morals and health, why should another park on the north side be any more so?

I believe I am a little better qualified perhaps than many persons in Washington to state the attitude of the "Teen-age" group here now. Unless I am much mistaken, it is something like this: They feel the need of a place where they may congregate socially; they think there has been a great deal of talk about it by adults but nothing done; they wonder, also, why they have never been consulted in any of the various discussions. I do not think they are anxious to have prescribed fun and recreation like an adjourned session of school. Given the proper place, and proper conditions, they are perfectly competent to have their own good wholesome fun. Probably some of them are immoral, and more will be unless we can provide some outlet for them. There must have been a great deal of immorality when the Ten Commandments were written.

If we provide that swimming pool, someone may drown in it. Well, someone already has drowned in the creek, and persons today somewhere have been killed in an auto wreck, but we are not going to abolish cars nor cease permitting our children to drive them. We have to learn to live in this world with all its pitfalls and perils, and the better we learn the better our chances of living longer.

Perhaps some of my readers may remember just after the close of the last war, two groups of high school boys, in disgust at certain features of the "Y" at that time, organized independent fraternities. Those organizations did not uplift either their members or the community, and they certainly played the very mischief with our high school athletic program when members of one fraternity would not pass the ball to a member of the other, or a non-member of either. Financial and other difficulties finally ended them. I would not like to see such a solution repeated.

No program at the start can be perfect. Let's get something started, and all push ahead with no knocking. As each problem is met and solved the whole scheme will become better organized.

Quoting from the Bible—"and Jesus increased daily in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." Lots of people forget about that growing in favor with man.

In conclusion, remember that an adult is simply a rather aged infant. Why don't adults seek their social relaxation at HOME as they recommend the "Teen-age" to do? Because it is insufficient, and only one side of the program. So adults have their Rotary and Lions' Clubs, their Moose, Elks, Eagles and Masons. Well, give the kids a chance.

HITCH-HIKING PUSSY CAT GETS BACK TO WAR WORK

LIVINGSTON, Mont.—(AP)—A railroad, a newspaper, a business firm and a motorist joined hands recently to rescue Tabby, champion mouser and an involuntary AWOL from her war job.

An assistant watchman in charge of rodents at the Rhyman Fruit Co. warehouse, Tabby wandered into a banana freight car. When the door was finally opened, Tabby was in Billings, Mont., miles away. A railroader recognized her, got in touch with her employer, who called The Livingston Enterprise.

As a result of an appeal in the paper that night, Tabby hitchhiked back to her job next day with an obliging motorist who stopped off at the freight office to pick her up.

FLOW OF HONEY ABOVE AVERAGE IN COMMUNITY

Bee Men See a Prosperous Year Due To Good Season So Far

Fayette County beekeepers report one of the best flows of honey so far this season, of any in recent years, and anticipate a heavy production of honey if the season continues favorable.

While the production of honey has been good, there has been a tendency for swarming that has upset some of the beekeepers' plans, the excess swarming being due to the abnormally hot weather in recent weeks.

Rev. W. H. Wilson, one of the leading beekeepers of the county said more swarms had come from the hives than he had ever seen before in such a short time.

Invariably beekeepers report that their bees passed through the winter in good condition.

In Ohio generally, conditions have been very favorable for the development of strong colonies of bees, is the opinion of W. E. Dunham, specialist in beekeeping, Ohio State University, who says "where colonies have been favorably situated, their development has been unusually favorable. The warm weather permitted heavy brooding in weak colonies."

Dunham also gives bee pastures grade A ratings, with special mention of abundant locust and blackberry bloom, both of which produce high quality honey.

Clover acreages are smaller than the average for the past years, but throughout the state prospects for production of clover honey are excellent, and clover honey is a favorite in the market.

In Fayette County there is a great deal of white and sweet clover at the present time, and bees are reaping a harvest.

The university specialist advised beekeepers to watch their colonies closely just before and during the early part of the clover blooming period. Strong colonies will consume stores rapidly just before the clover blossoms and may deplete their stores so badly they will starve unless fed sugar syrup, he pointed out.

MILK CONTROL RULES HELD TO BE INVALID

COLUMBUS, June 8.—(AP)—Butler County Health Board rules prescribing county-wide milk control regulations were held to be unenforceable by the State Supreme Court today. The action affirmed a ruling of the District Appellate Court.

The decision invalidates the conviction of Hubert Waller in a Justice of the Peace Court on charges of selling milk without a permit in violation of the health board's rules.

JOHNSON WOULD STOP NON-ESSENTIAL TRAVEL

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—Director J. Monroe Johnson, of the Office of Defense Transportation, today urged immediate cancellation of all non-war conventions or other meetings, and non-essential civilian travel, because the pressure of rail shipments for military necessities has not yet reached its peak.

Waialeale Mountain in the Hawaiian islands is believed the wettest place in the world, with an average of 460 inches of rain a year.

ASKS FORGIVENESS—Joan Ellis, 22-year-old Associated Press teletype operator whose "practice flash" that Allied invasion of France had begun, has asked America "to forgive me." "Please tell the American people how sorry I am for that false alarm," said the slim, sad-faced English girl, "and ask them to please forgive me. I didn't mean to do it."

PLANNING MAIL CHRISTMAS FOR MEN OVERSEAS

Post Office Department Has Issued Instructions About Mailing

Although this is only early June and Christmas is many months away, the Post Office Department already has announced plans for early mailing of packages to insure delivery at Christmas time, and Postmaster W. E. Passmore has made a draft of some of the instructions which should be read now by those planning to send overseas parcels for Christmas delivery.

The announcement says: "The welfare and happiness of our armed forces overseas depend in a large measure on good mail service. This is especially true at Christmas time. The Post Office Department must have the assistance of the relatives and friends of men overseas if the department is to give the best possible mail service. Christmas mail must be wrapped properly, addressed carefully, and mailed promptly.

"In order that Christmas parcels may reach the addressees on time and in good condition, arrangements have been made by the Post Office Department in cooperation with the War and Navy Departments (the latter including the Marines and Coast Guard) for the acceptance of such parcels for members of our armed forces serving outside the continental United States.

"Time of Mailing: Christmas cards and Christmas parcels for personnel of the armed forces overseas must be mailed during the period beginning September 15, 1944, and ending October 15, 1944, the earlier the better. The War Department advises that Christmas greeting cards for soldiers overseas must be sent in sealed envelopes and prepaid at the first-class rate.

"No requests from the addressees are required in connection with Christmas parcels mailed to Army personnel during this period only.

"Size and Weight: In view of the urgent need for shipping space to transport materials directly essential to the war effort, Christmas parcels shall not exceed the present limits of 5 pounds in weight or 15 inches in length or 36 inches in length and girth combined.

"Preparation: Owing to the great distance this mail must be transported and handling and any storage it must undergo, it is absolutely necessary that all articles be packed in boxes of metal, wood, solid fiberboard, or strong double-faced corrugated fiberboard reinforced with strong gummed-paper tape or tied with strong twine, or both. It is highly desirable that all fiberboard boxes be securely wrapped in heavy paper, if available, as experience has shown that boxes without an outer wrapper often become crushed or split, thus allowing the contents to escape.

"When combination packages are made up, including miscellaneous toilet articles, hard candies, soaps, etc., the contents should be tightly packed, in order that the several articles may not be loosened in transit, damaging the contents or the covering of the parcels. Christmas boxes should be enclosed in substantial containers. Hard candies, nuts, caramels, (including those covered with chocolate), cookies, fruit cake, and chocolate bars individually wrapped in waxed paper, should be enclosed in inner boxes of wood, metal, or cardboard. Soft candies, whether homemade or commercial, do not carry well.

"Perishable matter will not be

SEND REFUNDS ON INCOME TAX FOR LAST YEAR

Only 1,000,000 Out of a Total of 18,000,000 Have Checks

Many Fayette countians are among the 18,000,000 income taxpayers who have already received their refund checks on their 1943 income tax payments, or will receive them later on.

Joseph H. Nunan, Jr., Commissioner of Internal Revenue, has announced that the millionth refund on 1943 individual income tax returns was made this week. However he cautioned taxpayers that it will take several months before the remainder of the 1943 refunds can be completed. Each refund check will be mailed as soon as possible by the regional disbursing office of the Treasury Department in the taxpayer's own district.

In view of numerous inquiries from taxpayers as to when they can expect their refunds, Commissioner Nunan made the following statement:

"It is estimated that approximately 18,000,000 taxpayers are entitled to refunds on their 1943 income tax returns. It is our duty and intention to make these refunds as rapidly as possible.

"First attention was given to the claims of members of the armed forces. Now refunds to civilians are being made in large numbers.

"More than a quarter million taxpayers will receive their refunds this week, bringing the totals to more than a million since March 15. An increasing number of taxpayers will get their refunds next week, and in every subsequent week until the list is complete. Each refund will include interest computed at the rate of six percent per year from March 15, 1944, to the date the refund is scheduled.

"This is such a big job that obviously its completion will take several months. The preliminary steps before making refunds of any amounts paid or withheld in excess of the liability reported on these returns involve the assembling, checking and comparing of nearly two hundred million documents such as returns, withholding tax receipts and declarations of estimated tax. Every means possible is being utilized to expedite the handling of the task as a whole.

"Due to the volume of cases and number of processing operations, it is impractical to give preferential treatment to individual cases. In fairness to all taxpayers, we are making these refunds in the order in which they fall as a result of the mechanical procedure.

"Since each refund will be mailed as soon as it is ready, no correspondence or other action will be necessary on the part of the taxpayer. In case the taxpayer has moved from the address shown on his 1943 return, however, he should send a notice of the change, giving both the new and old address, to the collector of internal revenue, in the district in which the return was filed."

PUSH CARTERS VERY BUSY MEN

Large Quantities of Refuse And Garbage Moved

These are the days of harvest for the push cart owners who are very numerous about the city, and many of whom work early and late removing rubbish, garbage and what-have-you.

Some of the push cart owners make a dozen trips daily from various places in the city to the city dump, where the load accumulated from homes and places of business is disposed of. Invariably the push-cart owners charge a moderate fee for hauling rubbish of all kinds, removing garbage, and doing chores for various citizens while labor is scarce.

While some trucks also haul rubbish and collect garbage in a limited way, the push-carters remove a tremendous amount of refuse from premises.

IT'S TEAMWORK THAT DOES IT

The 5th War Loan starts next week!

WHEREVER your invasion forces are fighting—at sea, in the air, on the ground—they're working together for victory. They know that they must depend on each other, for only by coordinated teamwork will they win through to final victory in the earliest possible time.

The Fifth War Loan starts next week. It's going to take teamwork—a lot of it—to put this drive over the top. For we've got a job to do. As the tempo of invasion rises every one of us must mobilize for support of our fighting men.

In every city, town and hamlet men and women like yourself, have banded together as war bond Volunteer Workers, giving their time to taking your subscriptions for bonds. Support them. Give them the kind of teamwork our boys are giving to each other on the fighting fronts!

When your Volunteer Worker calls, double your war bond subscription. It's their job to help raise $16 billion of money for victory during this Fifth drive, $6 billions from individuals like yourself.

Make up your mind to welcome your Victory Volunteer with a friendly smile and an open checkbook—remembering that it's teamwork that does it!

Here's What Uncle Sam Offers You In The Fifth War Loan

Eagles and API Win League Softball Games

The Eagles won an 11 to 7 pitchers' battle from the Lions and the API outfit handed the Methodists a 7 to 1 beating while a sizeable handful of the faithful shivered on the bleachers to watch the third set of games in the City Softball League Wednesday evening at Wilson Field.

The Eagle-Lion game was one of those nip and tuck affairs until the Eagles got to Orr's offerings in the sixth inning for four consecutive singles. Terhune, came to his rescue but the clouting Eagles kept right on smacking the ball for three more solid hits and when the barrage was over they had racked up 5 runs on 7 straight hits.

McKinney and Pyle set the pace for the Eagles. McKinney rattled off three hits in four trips and Pyle got two for three. Terhune hauled in the big gun for the Lions to fire a double and single in three trips to the plate. The Lions had a chance to tie it up when Kissell and Reinke hit safely, but Brandenburg lifted a long fly to left center and the game was over.

API Wins 7 to 1
The Methodists were held to five scattered hits by Chase, API hurler, and while Petty, on the mound for the Methodists, gave up only eight bingles, four of them were bunched in the second inning for three runs.

Shaw, the third baseman, got three of the Methodists' five hits, a double and a pair of singles. Warner, right shortstop of the API, had a perfect evening at the plate with two for two.

The Churchmen managed to get runners on the paths in almost every inning, but lacked the punch to get them around to score.

Pirates Nose Out Reds, 4-2, By Strong Finish in See-Saw

By JACK HAND

(By the Associated Press)

Mel Ott continued to lift the Giants by his bootstraps, and the Chicago White Sox began to cast their shadow across the American League standings today as baseball swung back into normal stride.

Ott clouted two more home runs, lifting his season production to 14, as the Giants pummeled Al Javery and the Boston Braves last night, 6-2, behind the four-hit chugging of Harry Feldman.

Jimmy Dykes' White Sox stretched their win streak to seven by downing Detroit, 33-1, in another night game. The Sox are only a half game behind the third-place Tigers, and three and a half behind the leading St. Louis Browns.

Orval Grove captured his fifth victory at the expense of Hal Newhouse, whose bid for win No. 9 resulted in loss No. 4 when he walked Grove with the bases loaded to force in the tie-breaking run.

Boston sent the New York Yankees reeling back, 8-1, as Tex

Hughson grabbed his seventh decision and Boss Joe Cronin led the attack with a double and homer. Hank Borowy suffered his second setback of the campaign.

Rip Sewell ran his victory string to seven by stopping Cincinnati 4-2 on Vince DiMaggio's single in the eighth, which drove home Johnny Barrett and Jim Russell.

The Reds opened the scoring in the first when Max Marshall and Gee Walker singled and Bob Elliott threw wild, but the Pirates came back in their half, with John Barrett singling, stealing second, advancing to third on an infield play, and scoring on a fly.

In the fifth Frank Zak singled to open the Pirates' half, Sewell bunted safely, and Zak reached third on a double play and scored on Frank Gustine's single.

The Reds even it in the sixth on walks to Marshall and Walker and a single by Eric Tipton, but their scoring ended there.

The Phillies came from behind twice to top Brooklyn 6-5 when Jimmy Waddell singled home Tony Lupien in the ninth after Ray Hamrick had scored the tying run on Rube Melton's wild pitch.

St. Louis and Chicago in the National and Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland and St. Louis in the American were not scheduled.

EyeWitness Stories From Invasion Front

handed up to the crew by enthusiastic men and women. Children asked for souvenirs.

People took us to the main hotel where one of them opened up a piano and they sang the National Anthem.

First contact with enemy tanks in the central sector of the front was made this morning east of Bayeux while our infantry was clearing some high ground. After our infantry got in among the enemy positions and was mopping up, a small group of enemy tanks appeared and opened fire.

Infantry anti-tank guns returned the fire and the enemy retired quickly.

Forces Mass For Tank Battle On Opposite Sides Of Hill

By COLLIN WILLS

(Representing the combined Allied Press, distributed by the Associated Press)

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN FRANCE, June 7.—(Delayed)—Up at the front while the infantry engages the enemy on a half dozen sectors in a confused but purposeful pattern, a great armored battle goes on for the last ridge before this target town and for the town itself.

I was up there late yesterday. Our tanks were clearly visible along the near side of the ridge. Our guns were hidden in copes. Our infantry, in little sections in Indian file, were moving up in support.

On the other side of the ridge were Panzers and somewhere out of sight anti-tank guns. Six British tanks that had been put out of action were strewn about on the nearer slopes. A tank battle was in full fury then.

On the way back here I passed a steady stream of British armor rolling up so rapidly that roads and villages were wrapped in a dust storm.

'Matchbox' Rescue Ships See Beachhead Opened—Save 444

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

(Representing the combined Allied Press, distributed by the Associated Press)

WITH A U. S. COAST GUARD RESCUE FLOTILLA OFF THE FRENCH COAST, June 6.—(Delayed)—(P)—From this 50-ton match box of a boat, lurching about within a few hundred yards of the French coast, I have watched our troops dig out a narrow and, as yet, bitterly contested beachhead in the first phase of the Allied invasion along these shores.

Four of our columns are slowly beating their way inland under heavy German fire which appears to be coming from well-concealed batteries, although Allied battleships, cruisers and destroyers are giving the landing troops magnificent support.

Our tanks are being landed now and our naval fire is ripping up the initial landing beach strip just in front of our troops in an area about a half a mile wide.

Our little vessel was one of 50-odd in this flotilla assigned to accompany the invading troops right to the shore's edge as a mobile rescue unit.

Three of our landing boats have been hit up to now, within our sight—two are burning and one has been capsized.

Our boat has yet to pick up a casualty, and in this area even the casualties along the beachhead itself do not appear heavy.

(A Coast Guard correspondent with the flotilla reported the small cutters operating with both American and English forces rescued at least 444 troops and sailors from drowning.)

GRATITUDE

D-Day was the most critical day of our generation. We are deeply indebted to the press, radio and newsreels which, since the beginning of the invasion, have kept us fully informed as to the movements of the Allied forces.

This, the greatest achievement in the gathering and dissemination of information ever recorded, makes us realize what our men faced when they landed, and more fully understand the depth of our obligation as individuals and organizations in backing up our armed forces.

Our prayers are with all who are participating in the liberation of Europe, and our sympathy goes out to the families of those who have made the supreme sacrifice.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, June 8.—AP—In the slowest trade in many weeks grain futures held about steady today, supported by short covering and a scarcity of offerings following a short-lived flurry of Commission House selling at the opening. Traders showed an inclination to await further war developments and additional crop news.

Trading was in a narrow range in the wheat pit. Rally failed, reflecting higher prices at Winnipeg and Minneapolis and rather persistent Commission House buying of the July, but the trade was light. Oats were firm after early weakness with support coming from Commission Houses and local operators.

Wheat closed 1/4 to 3/4 lower than yesterday, July 1.55 1/2. Oats were unchanged to 1/4 lower, July 7 1/4-3/4. Rye was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, July 1.05-1.05 1/2. Barley was unchanged to 1/4 lower, July 1.18 1/2.

GRANGE HEADS' SECOND MEETING WAS WEDNESDAY

First Time in County Two Such Sessions Held in One Year

For the first time in Fayette County Grange history, two Grange officers' meetings have been held in the same year. The second session was at Chaffin school Wednesday night.

Plans to make this the "strongest and largest of any year in its history," were set out by Deputy Grange Master Loren Hynes, in charge of the meeting. He discussed first the important program of increasing the Grange membership in the county before the close of the Grange year the last of September.

In many of the granges, a definite home to home contact will be made in securing new members. The county now has a total of 951 grange members.

"With this unusual membership, plans have developed to have the largest class of initiates for the sixth degree which will be given at the State Grange meeting in Columbus next December," it was said. It was pointed out that all subordinate grange members can become eligible for the sixth degree by taking the fifth degree, which will probably be put on here in the county before the state Grange meeting or by taking it at a special time during the state Grange meeting preceding the sixth degree class.

Plans were discussed for a county-wide grange picnic which will probably be held at the Fair Grounds, possibly August 13. State Chaplain Hoy will be invited to be guest speaker. The morning services will be in the nature of a religious program.

The home economics committee meeting was conducted by Mrs. Loren Hynes, county matron. A cookie baking contest will be held at most granges this month.

RESCUES NEIGHBOR FROM FALLS POOL

Paul Horner, 17, of East Monroe, is being lauded for his heroic act in saving the life of Robert Butler, 28, a neighbor, from the deep pool at the foot of the falls of Rattlesnake Creek at East Monroe.

Horner dove into the water, estimated at 10 feet in depth, to rescue Butler who had gone down the third time after suffering from dizziness while swimming in the pool.

Locating Butler at the bottom of the pool, Horner brought him to the surface and swam with him to the creek bank. Butler was in a semi-conscious condition at the time.

Horner is employed as a section hand on the B. & O. railroad.

COMMON PLEAS COURT VERDICT SUSTAINED

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of Judge G. W. McDowell, in the Highland County Common Pleas Court, who held that Eugene J. Moore, who was injured in the Greenfield school building while giving a sleight of hand performance, was not entitled to compensation from the school board.

FAYETTE IS STILL BELOW LAST YEAR

Other Counties Also Short in Sales Made

Fayette County is still somewhat behind in the sale of prepaid sales receipts, compared with the same period last year. At the present time the total so far this year is $45,082.32 compared with $46,315.80, and during the recent weeks there has been an increase nearly every week, so that it is expected the last year's figures will soon be passed.

For the week ending May 20, the total sales reached $2,727.20 and for the same time last year the amount was $2,641.53.

Clinton and Green counties are also a little behind, and are slightly ahead of last year's sales.

CO-OPS NEEDN'T SELL ALL FARM PRODUCTS

Statement Made at Farm Bureau Council Meet

Although it was admitted that cooperatives have saved money for farmers on fertilizer and feed, Paint Township Farm Bureau Council II decided it was not wise for cooperatives to handle all products necessary for farming, it is reported.

The statements were brought out in a discussion of free enterprise when the group met with Elmer, Clara and Raymond Zimmerman.

Paint Council II will have a display at the county fair, to be in complete charge of Miss Zimmerman. The council will exhibit with other councils in the agricultural building.

NIP AND TUCKERS LEARN TO PATCH CLOTHING

Nip and Tuck 4-H Club members learned how to make different types of patches when they met with the McFadden girls Wednesday. The 12 members answered the roll call with their favorite flower.

The next meeting will be with Jo Ann Pope Wednesday at 8 P. M.

This is How It All Happened

One day I got tired of roasting at home.

So I invested in 8 rolls of

And I installed it myself in spare time.

Bingo! KIMSUL shut out heat—Home was 10° to 15° cooler.

Later, when winter came, I found KIMSUL kept my house warmer

And my fuel bill, thanks to KIMSUL, dropped 30%.

SO I'M RECOMMENDING IT TO YOU

KIMSUL is one of the most efficient insulations you can buy. Easy to install—you can do it yourself. Just apply it between attic floor joists, or between rafters of a sloping roof, and fasten both ends. Packaged in tight rolls and compressed to 1/5th its normal length, you have fewer rolls to lug up to the attic—save as much as 80% leg work. One Roll Insulates 100 sq. ft.

SPECIAL INVASION SERVICES ARE HELD

Grace Church Is Open Daily For Prayers

Special services in connection with the Allied invasion of Europe, held at Grace Methodist Church, drew a large number of members and special prayers were offered by Rev. George B. Parkin and others.

Much of the time was spent in reading appropriate passages of scripture, and silent prayer, amid soft music played on the piano.

In addition to the special services Tuesday night, prayers for the success of Allied armies, and for the safety of American forces involved in the war, were offered at the regular Wednesday night services.

Grace Church is kept open daily for all who wish to enter for prayer and meditation, Rev. Parkin said Thursday.
